Who's your Daddy?

Every year on June 21st our society pauses to remember and celebrate our fathers. This Father's day we want to continue to express our gratitude for the men who are carrying the mantle of fatherhood. We are in a unique time where hidden truths are being revealed and people are rising to the occasion of defending one's sense of self.

As such, this year – we have taken notice of the importance and the impact of having a father in the home. Men play a vital role in the construct of our society and in our communities and as such a man who becomes a father should know that he carries the weight of transforming society for the better or for the worse.

In the midst of this time of turmoil, grief, and uncertainty. We are also faced with the challenge of injustice and inequality for our black men. News has become even more unbearable to watch because of the constant videos of our black fathers being gunned down by police officers and being murdered.

Another diabolical plot to remove black fathers from the hierarchy of the black family group. Our fathers are meant to be the providers, protectors, priests, and prophets in the homes and if that male figure is extracted, the family will be left vulnerable and susceptible to be dismantled and targeted.

Therefore, as our fathers have always protected us – let us all show appreciation to the work and help of the men who continue to strive to improve the way of life for their families. To the men who continue to pursue to advance the welfare of others, to men who love and care for their wives and children, to the men who are providers, to the men who speak up against injustice, to the men who are a father to the fatherless, to the men who have given their backs for others to stand on, and especially to the men who pray. I salute you.

Today, I want to take this time to earnestly implore the fact that we need our fathers-we need them in our homes and we need them in our communities. Let's celebrate our Fathers today!

More than 17,000 Haitians voluntarily move back to their home country

Santo Domingo, D.R.

On Wednesday, June 24th Josué Gastelbondo Head of Mission of the International Organization for Migration (IOM) in the Dominican Republic declared that during the last two weeks 17,336 Haitians have returned voluntarily to Haiti which indicates a marked acceleration of return despite the fact that the Dominican Republic partially reopened its economy.

Since the island's two nations closed their borders from March 16 to mid-June, 57,669 Haitians residing in the Dominican Republic have returned to Haiti, according to figures from the Dominican border authorities compiled by the IOM office.

According to IOM statistics in Haiti, last week 6,356 people went to the Dominican Republic and 11,811 people were registered at border crossings to Haiti, which represents an increase in the trend. Remember that these figures are not exhaustive, the IOM in Haiti only monitors the four official border crossings and 46 other illegal crossings out of more than a hundred.

Haiti inches closer to 100 coronavirus-related deaths

Haiti on Friday closed in on the 100 mark for the number of people killed by the coronavirus after it recorded four new deaths over the last 24 hours.

In its daily bulletin, the Ministry of Public Health said the four deaths increased the total to 96.

It said 114 new cases increased the country's tally to 5,543. Some 512 people have recovered.

Trinidad keeps borders closed

Port of Spain, T&T:

Prime Minister Dr. Keith Rowley says the borders of the twin island republic will remain closed as long as health requirements related to COVID-19 remain in place.

Speaking during a media conference in Tobago on Saturday, June 20th the Prime Minister said while some Caribbean countries have started to reopen their borders, his administration is determined to take a cautious approach. "We want to keep our borders where it is because the pandemic is raging. The closure of the borders is not meant to penalize anybody, it's not meant to lock us in here and make us prisoners. It's meant to keep the virus out, and the virus travels by way of people. It is normal common sense," he said.

To date, Trinidad and Tobago has recorded 123 positive COVID-19 cases. There are currently six active cases.

George Williams released from 50-year wait in prison without trial

Kingston, JA:

George Williams had his first meal in 50 years outside of prison walls on Wednesday, June 25th after a St Catherine Circuit Court judge upheld a notice of abandonment in his murder case.

"Freedom time," was all the grey-haired Williams could manage to say as he emerged from the courthouse flanked by his niece Pamela Green, his brother Aldwin Jones, and lawyer Isat Buchanan. "I am feeling so elated to know that after such a long time, he's finally out of prison," said Green before making her way downstairs to greet her uncle. The 71-year-old Williams had spent 50 years in custody without trial.

In handing down the ruling, Justice Stephanie Jackson-Haisley said it was an appropriate decision. "We wish him well and that he reintegrates into his community and his family, and all I ask of you is to assist Mr. Williams in that reintegration process," said the judge.

Williams was facing one count each of murder, malicious destruction of property, and wounding with intent charges stemming from an incident in 1970. He was arrested and charged with the killing of a Canadian man during a violent attack on the man's family while they drove through his hometown of Ivy district in St Catherine.

Bowman defeats veteran Engel

Kimmy Blair
Street Hype Writer

Jamaal Bowman, a former educator and middle school principal from the Bronx, declared victory on Wednesday over Rep. Eliot Engel, a 16-term member of Congress who represents New York's 16th congressional district for Bronx/Westchester.

Up to press time with 92 percent of precincts reporting, Bowman has 60.9 percent to Engel's 35.6 percent. Bowman reportedly told supporters: "Eliot Engel used to say he was a thorn in the side of Donald Trump... But you know what Donald Trump is more afraid of than anything else? A Black man with power."

Bowman received high-profile endorsements from Senators Bernie Sanders and Elizabeth Warren, as well as Rep. Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez. Most of the Democratic establishment—including former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton and Jamaal Bowman, 44 educator and politician.

House Speaker Nancy Pelosi—fell behind Engel. Meanwhile, in her own race, Ocasio-Cortez was declared the winner in her contest in the District 14 Queens/The Bronx.

Bowman said in a statement Wednesday morning. "I cannot wait to get to Washington and cause problems for the people maintaining the status quo."

Engel released a statement saying he did not believe Bowman should declare victory before absentee ballots have been counted. "Any declarative statement on the outcome of this race right now is premature and undermines the democratic process," the statement said.

New York is still counting votes and may be for days, with a huge increase in absentee voting during the coronavirus pandemic. However, elections analysis observed that Bowman's lead over Engel is too great for the incumbent to make up.

17.88%, after which Chaim Deutsch came in third with a 9.44%, Isiah James with 9.36% and lastly Lutchi Gayot with 1.02%.

With a proclamation issued on Monday, US President Donald Trump extended and expanded immigration restrictions to limit the entry of foreign workers to the United States. The move set off ripples of alarm among scientists and drew fire from experts concerned about the future of US science.

According to the order, the United States will stop issuing certain categories of foreign-worker visa — notably the H-1B visa given to foreign faculty members hired at universities and employees hired by tech firms — until the end of the year. The Trump administration characterized the decision as a plan to stave off the economic impact of the coronavirus pandemic, and to prioritize jobs for US citizens.

The freeze, which goes into effect on 24 June, will not apply to people who are currently in the United States, or those with other valid documents for entering the country. It provides exemptions for some foreign workers — academics on J-1 visas, often postdoctoral researchers, should be clear, according to a senior administration official. Officers issuing visas at US consulates abroad will evaluate petitions for other exemptions, including requests from researchers or doctors engaged in COVID-19 work.

Experts slammed the move and argued that foreign talent is necessary to keep the US scientific enterprise competitive.

“This is a huge deal,” says Julia Phillips, a member of the US National Science Foundation’s governing board and former chief technology officer at Sandia National Laboratories in Albuquerque, New Mexico. Last year, the United States issued more than 188,000 H-1B visas across sectors, according to the Department of State. A January report from the National Science Foundation said that 30% of people in science and engineering jobs in the United States were born outside the country.

“We find it extremely concerning, particularly as medical residents are brought in on H-1B visas, and faculty who are necessary to educate the US workforce,” says Lizbet Boroughs, associate vice-president for federal relations at the Association of American Universities in Washington DC, whose members include leading US research institutions.

“The bottom line is that suspending processing for H-1B visas is going to have an impact on American research and American innovation and America’s ability to train and teach its scientific workforce pipeline,” she says.

Jamaica's workforce training program to bolster tourism recovery

KINGSTON, JAMAICA:

Jamaica's workforce training program is being hailed as a resounding success. The free online programs offered by the Jamaica Centre for Tourism Innovation (JCTI), in partnership with the National Restaurant Association, the American Hotel & Lodging Educational Institute, the University of the West Indies Open Campus and HEART National Service Training Agency, trained more than 8,000 tourism workers over a 12 week period.

Courses were designed to enhance the skills of hospitality workers, deliver internationally recognized certifications, and educate the workforce on the new health and safety protocols that were rolled out with the June 15 reopening of the island's tourist industry.

"Jamaica's extraordinary workforce has been essential to our success as a sought-after vacation destination. We applaud the more than 8,000 individuals who took advantage of the online training program," said Donovan White, Jamaica's Director of Tourism. "We appreciate the training these workers have undergone to enhance their competitiveness and ensure they're ready to meet the new demands of the travel industry. Travelers will appreciate the special focus and extra attention Jamaica's hospitality workers place on service delivery in the context of the new post-COVID health and safety protocols."

The free online training program, which usually costs approximately J$9,000 per person, runs through July. The Ministry of Tourism's significant investment in Jamaica's human capital underscores the importance of people to Jamaica's tourism product. Workers could choose from 11 online courses and obtain certifications that include: guest room attendant, laundry attendant, certified banquet server, hospitality supervisor, restaurant server, and hospitality law.

As part of the training, participants were presented with scenarios that help them better understand and quickly address real time guest needs and challenges in a post-COVID travel environment.

Tips for Planning a Summer Family Vacation

(Family Features)

As stay-at-home orders ease, many families are eager to get out of the house and hit the road for a summer trip. However, vacation will most likely look different this year as families looking to get away may stay closer to home and take extra precautions. Make your summer travel plans safe and successful with these tips.

Destination: Taking a road trip allows you to avoid crowded airports or public transportation hubs and bring your own food and groceries. A drivable destination is still a getaway, and driving typically offers more flexibility and requires less planning. Even if it's just a trip across the state instead of across the country, picking a destination within driving distance of your home is a chance to break away from everyday surroundings and routine.

Cleanliness: Clean accommodations are always important and may be even more so now. Many hotels and whole-home vacation rentals, which were pioneered by Vrbo nearly 25 years ago, have enhanced cleaning and disinfection guidelines. When selecting a place to stay during your trip, consider whole-home vacation rentals so your family has the privacy of having the entire property to yourselves, and make sure to review the cleaning measures that have been implemented. Measures to look for include cleaning and disinfecting high-touch surfaces, stocking antibacterial soap and sanitizers for guests, building in time between bookings to avoid back-to-back stays and offering minimal contact check-in and check-out options.

Activities: Although many amusement parks, tourist attractions and businesses have re-opened, their hours may be limited and there may be capacity restrictions, so be sure to research requirements for tickets and admission and plan your trip accordingly. Consider accommodations for your trip that include built-in activities for your family, such as a private pool, or opt for less-crowded destinations like mountain cabins or lake houses to enjoy a change of scenery.

Flexible Accommodations: In these uncertain times, much of the travel industry has adjusted cancellation policies to be more accommodating to travelers. In fact, according to a survey of Vrbo travelers, more than 75% of respondents are more likely to choose accommodations with flexible cancellation policies when booking their next vacation home. When planning and booking your trip, be sure you clearly understand the cancellation policies. When possible, seek out options that allow you to make changes with minimal or no penalty if circumstances force you to adjust your plans.

JFF to benefit from FIFA COVID-19 Fund

The Jamaica Football Federation (JFF) is set to benefit from the FIFA COVID-19 Fund after world football's governing body approved US $1.5 billion to be shared among its member associations.

FIFA is to make the sum available in grants and loans as a part of the COVID-19 relief plan to help associations impacted by the coronavirus.

All 211 member associations will be entitled to a basic grant of $1 million each as well as $500,000 which must be invested in women's football.

The total US $1.5 million works out to just over $209 million Jamaican.

According to JFF president, Michael Ricketts, they are delighted by the prospect of what could unfold.

Of the US $500,000 or just under $70 million Jamaican that will go to women's football, Ricketts says the parish associations will benefit with funds going to the development of their programmes.

There will be strict controls on the use of funds, audit requirements, as well as clear loan repayment conditions with the deputy chairman of FIFA's Governance Committee appointed to supervise the relief plan steering committee.

FIFA had already announced in April that it would free up US $150 million in subsidies to member associations to help deal with the consequences of the COVID-19 crisis.

Cricket West Indies to show support for #BLM

News Americas:

West Indies cricket captain Jason Holder says the team will be showing their support for the #BLM movement in their first test match on July 8th in England. What he did not reveal was how.

Holder, appearing on at the show Good Morning Britain on Wednesday, was about the ongoing worldwide protest against racism following the death of George Floyd in the United States.

He responded: "The West Indies team is firmly behind the "Black Lives Matter" movement. As a team we will show our solidarity to the movement. We had few discussions and come July 8th, we will show our support."

But Holder stopped short of revealing exactly how. Will they all take a knee?, will they wear #BlackLivesMatter slogans pinned to their shirts? How? That we don't know. So, or now fans will have to wait and see.

What Holder did say, however, is that he feels the current movement presents "... a perfect opportunity to affect change."

"One of the things that stands out if unity. We need to unite and come together as one," he added.

Interestingly, the International Cricket Council, which usually does not allow gestures supporting "political, religious or racial activities," has decided to take a "common sense approach" for any potential Black Lives Matter protest by the players.

The West Indies squad arrived in Manchester last week and have started training at the Old Trafford ground where they will be based and will live, train and play in a "bio-secure" environment during the seven weeks of the tour, as part of the comprehensive medical and operations plans to ensure player and staff safety.

The three-Test series in England will mark the resumption of international cricket, sans a crowd, after it was suspended in March due to coronavirus pan-

Chris Gayle pulls out of CPL 2020

Citing family reasons, veteran Jamaican batsman Chris Gayle has opted out of this year's staging of the Caribbean Premier League (CPL), a day before the players' draft is scheduled to take place.

This year's tournament is set to take place in Trinidad & Tobago from August 18 to September 10, subject to permission from the T&T government.

According to a report from online cricket magazine espnricinfo, Gayle communicated his decision on Monday to the St Lucia Zouks, the franchise he was set to play for in this year's CPL, saying he would not be available.

It's understood that in his email, Gayle pointed out that due to the lockdown, he has not been able to meet his family and his young child who are in St Kitts, while he has been in Jamaica.

Gayle said he needed a break and wanted to spend time with his young family.

Gayle signed up with Zouks in April after an acrimonious fallout with Jamaica Tallawahs, where he had returned in 2019 for a second stint.

The Zouks would have been the third team Gayle would represent in the CPL after two stints with Tallawahs (2013-16 and 2019) and a two-year stay with St Kitts and Nevis (2017-2018).

West Indies Batsman looks to outperform England

West Indies batsman Shai Hope is hoping he will rediscover his 2017 form against England when his back to back centuries helped the Windies to win the Wisden Trophy.

Back in the country where he also attended school, the Bajan admitted that his test average of 27.23 in 31 tests is a source of frustration but is optimistic ahead of the July 8 first test.

The 26 year old who made his test debut in 2015, insisted that his main focus is helping his team to win and has no preference on where he is in the batting order.

Hope was speaking with the media via a zoom conference call on Tuesday. The West Indies will face England in a three-test series in bio-secure venues without spectators. The first test starts on July 8 at

Reggae Boy Bailey and Bayer Leverkusen miss out on Champions League spot

Reggae Boy Leon Bailey and his Bayer Leverkusen side missed out on a Champions League spot, despite clipping Mainz 1-0 in the final match of the German Bundesliga on Saturday.

Leverkusen had a shot at the 4th place spot at the start of the day but needed to win and hope Borussia Monchengladbach lost to Hertha Berlin.

Bailey started and played up to minute 65 before being substituted.

However, Monchengladbach however beat Hertha Berlin 2-1 to secure 4th place and kill any chances of Leverkusen getting a Champions League spot.

NEW JERSEY NEWS

Paterson council members Michael Jackson, Alex Mendez, two others charged with voter fraud

Mendez is charged with election fraud, fraud in casting mail-in vote, unauthorized possession of ballots, false registration or transfer, tampering with public records, and falsifying or tampering with records.

Razyen is charged with fraud in casting mail-in vote and unauthorized possession of ballots.

"Today's charges send a clear message: if you try to tamper with an election in New Jersey, we will find you and we will hold you accountable," said New Jersey attorney general Gurbir Grewal. "We will not allow a small number of criminals to undermine the public's confidence in our democratic process."

Grewal's office began investigating after being alerted by the U.S. Postal Inspection Service to hundreds of mail-in ballots being found in a mailbox in Paterson. More ballots were found in a mailbox in Haledon.

Authorities said the four men engaged in the improper collection of mail-in ballots. The six ward elections in Paterson were conducted solely through vote-by mail because of the coronavirus pandemic.

Jackson and Mendez allegedly approached voters to collect their mail-in ballots in violation of state election laws. These ballots were then delivered to the Passaic County Board of Elections without identifying the bearer as required by law.

Jackson allegedly had in his possession more than three ballots that were neither his own nor for which he was an authorized bearer. He also received the ballot of one voter that was not voted or sealed. That ballot was delivered to the election board sealed in an envelope without bearer.

Jackson, who is vice president of the City Council, did not respond to a call for comment. Mendez also allegedly procured or submitted one or more voter registration applications for people he knew were not eligible to vote in a certain election district.

"I am not guilty and I expect to be vindicated. I look forward to serving the citizens of Paterson on July 1st," said Mendez.

Khalique allegedly went to a residence in the 2nd Ward to collect mail-in ballots from one or more voters. These ballots were delivered to the Passaic County Board of Elections without identifying bearer.

Khalique is the owner of controversial A-1 Elegant Tours, also known as Eastern Star Transportation. He was charged with contract fraud and other crimes in a separate investigation that involved the Essex County Prosecutor's Office and Passaic County Prosecutor's Office.

Razyen, who is infamous for appearing in a social media video flipping through a bundle of ballots, allegedly collected ballots. None of the ballots he handled had him listed as the bearer.

Clear signs that a relationship can last

By John Gottman
& Julie Schwartz Gottman

After a decade of analyzing data from the Love Lab, we discovered that one set of variables determined whether a marriage would succeed or fail: Were the couples being positive or negative during the interview? There was very little gray area. Either they emphasized their good times together and minimized the bad times, or they emphasized their bad times together and minimized the good times.

What we've learned is that the couples who are most likely to have happy marriages show the following qualities and characteristics when they talk about their relationship:

Fondness, Affection, Admiration: Either verbally or nonverbally, the couple expresses positive affect (warmth, humor, and affection); they emphasize the good times; they complement their partner.

We-ness Versus Separateness: The couple emphasizes their ability to communicate well with each other and their mutual unity and togetherness. They use words like “we,” “us,” or “our” as opposed to “I,” “me,” or “mine.” They don't describe themselves as separate.

Expansiveness versus Withdrawal: The couple describes memories about their shared past vividly and distinctly, versus vaguely or more generally with an inability to recall details. They are positive and energetic talking about their relationship, versus lacking energy and enthusiasm in recalling their past. They express intimate information about themselves, rather than staying impersonal and guarded.

Glorifying the Struggle: In a relationship, people build a whole life together, filled with values, purpose, and meaning. In “glorifying the struggle,” the couple expresses pride that they have survived difficult times, versus expressing the hopelessness of their hard times. They emphasize their commitment to the relationship versus questioning whether they should really be with this partner. They are proud of their relationship versus being ashamed of it.

They talk about their shared values, goals, and life philosophy. They have intentionally created a sense of shared meaning and purpose, even in the way they move through time together. And they create intentional traditions in their relationship for connecting emotionally. We call these “rituals of connection.” Dates are an example of rituals of connection.

What it boils down to is that an overall perceived negativity will quickly erode a relationship. And every successful marriage and relationship has, at its foundation, a deep and close friendship — partners who really know each other and are, at the heart of it, on the same side, part of the same team.

The words you choose matter. Your tone of voice matters. Even your facial expressions matter. Of course we all get it wrong sometimes. We miscommunicate, and when we do, we need to make repairs. Expecting no communication snafus in a relationship is like expecting a hole-in-one every time you hit a golf ball. Happy relationships aren't relationships where there is no fighting. They are relationships where repairs are made after regrettable incidents happen — and where a couple connects with each other day to day. Happy couples are not so very different from unhappy couples; they are simply able to make repairs to their relationship easier and faster so they can get back to the joy of being together.

In the end, a big part of the success or failure of your relationship depends on the conversations you have with each other. Three hundred couples did the exercises, recorded their conversations, and shared their stories.

New couples, celibate couples, same-sex couples, and long-term married couples all found that these conversations brought them closer and helped them see each other in new and exciting ways. They became better friends, and they fell in love all over again.

Eating Right

Eat Right

Eating right is important to staying at a healthy weight and keeping an energy balance, the balance between the calories in what you eat and drink, and calories you burn when moving. The same amount of ENERGY IN (calories consumed) and ENERGY OUT (calories burned) over time = weight stays the same.

Benefits

What are the benefits of eating healthy?
Weight loss.
Reduced cancer risk.
Diabetes management.
Heart health and stroke prevention.
The health of the next generation.
Strong bones and teeth.
Better mood.
Improved memory.

Foods

Eat more dark green vegetables such as leafy greens and broccoli and orange vegetables including carrots and sweet potatoes. Vary your protein choices with more fish, beans and lentils. Aim for at least 3 ounces of whole-grain cereals, breads, crackers, rice or pasta every day.

Effects

Healthy habits help prevent certain health conditions, such as heart disease, stroke, and high blood pressure. If you take care of yourself, you can keep your cholesterol and blood pressure within a safe range. This keeps your blood flowing smoothly, decreasing your risk of cardiovascular diseases.

How you fuel your body is the foundation of lifelong health and vitality. A balanced and minimally processed whole food diet complemented by the right nutritional supplements provides the essential macronutrients, vitamins, and minerals your body needs to function at its peak.
